

9.7 Appeal of Finding of Probable Cause

9.7 Appeal of Finding of Probable Cause

A finding of probable cause is not a final order and is therefore not immediately reviewable; errors relating to a determination of probable cause may, however, be the subject of an appeal following entry of the dispositional order. In re K.R.B., 134 N.C. App. 328, 331 (1999) (dismissing the juvenile’s appeal from the order finding probable cause as it was not properly before the court on appeal). In the case of In re Ford, 49 N.C. App. 680, 683 (1980), the Court stated that evidentiary rulings of the trial court during the probable cause hearing “may well merit our attention upon his appeal from a trial resulting in a disposition unfavorable to him. They are not properly before us, however, in relation to a finding of probable cause, which is not a ‘final order.’”